
Guidelines

The International Seminar on Watershed Management is a technical and professional course, placing a high demand on the attention and contributions of the participants. Each participant will offer a brief presentation on watershed issues in his or her home country—providing an opportunity for other

Seminar Timing and Location

The seminar will take place from April 11 to May 1, 2010, in Arizona. Participants should plan to arrive at Phoenix Skyharbor International Airport on April 10, 2010. The group will spend time in Phoenix and travel to Tucson and Flagstaff. The seminar will conclude with a visit to the Grand Canyon. Participants should plan to depart from Phoenix on May 2. Transport

This seminar is offered in the English language; therefore, English-speaking proficiency is a requirement to course attendance. Selection of participants will be based on professional and technical competency.

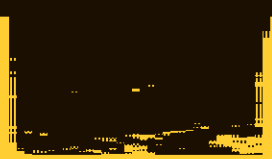
Please complete application from:

Send your application to:

The [illegible]

For more information on other international seminars, visit the US Forest Service and to partner with www.fs.fed.us/global/is/

Travel to and from the seminar is the responsibility of the participant.



SEMINAR ON WATERSHED MANAGEMENT

[illegible]

Sponsored by the US Forest Service International Programs, the International Seminar on Watershed Management will take place from April 11 to May 1,
The seminar will also address the economic value of water and innovative solutions for sustaining and creating financial incentives that promote best
Topics for discussion will include water rights, municipal water treatment plants, reservoirs, groundwater wells, canals, and waterbanking.
Seminar Design
watershed health: Key personnel and experts will address how various practices affect watersheds
3) Economic value of water:
demonstrate how planning, monitoring, and research are conducted in the US; and discuss best management practices and mitigating measures.
approaches to creating incentives for good management practices through three unique case studies: New York City, Mexico and Phoenix.
agement, community involvement, der participation and partnerships.
conflict man stakehol
INTERNATIONAL SEMINAR ON WATERSHED MANAGEMENT
Arizona, United States ~ April 11 - May 1, 2010